Subject: Phase 1 Report Delivery, Chemetco Property

Dear Ms. Rednour:

CDM and TechLaw are pleased to deliver the Phase 1 Report concerning the PRP search for the Chemetco property located near Hartford, IL. This report discusses the steps undertaken during Phase 1 of this project and presents several lists of PRPs and one master list as developed through collaboration with IEPA.

I will be in contact with you regarding scheduling a conference call to review the report and plan the next steps. CDM and TechLaw appreciate the opportunity to assist IEPA in the search for PRPs and are looking forward to starting work on the next Phase of the project. Please call me at (314) 241-8510 if you have any immediate questions or concerns.

Very truly yours,

Lisa Harrison

Background

The Chemetco, Inc. facility (Chemetco) is an inactive industrial facility, located near Hartford, Illinois. Beginning in 1970, Chemetco operated as a copper smelter to derive copper and other non-ferrous metals and alloys from recyclable copper-bearing scrap and manufacturing residues. In October 2001, Chemetco shut down operations and filed for bankruptcy. Environmental degradation resulted from Chemetco operations, which included the illegal discharge of wastes to a tributary of Long Lake and the accumulation of scrap materials and smelting wastes directly on the ground surface. In 2002, the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA) determined that Chemetco should be addressed under the authorities of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA) rather than the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA).

As a part of CERCLA activities, IEPA tasked CDM and its subcontractor TechLaw to support IEPA in the Potentially Responsible Party (PRP) Search related to Chemetco. The support is to be conducted in two Phases – Phase I is to compile and assess available information regarding suppliers, limited process information and scrap materials while Phase II is to conduct additional research on the site owner and operations. Phase I of this support has been completed and is summarized in this Phase I Summary Report.

The primary objective of Phase I was to conduct an abbreviated assessment of the readily available data to understand the breadth of these data, evaluate their potential to provide an adequate foundation for further negotiation, and to identify data gaps. The result of this assessment is a list of Significant Suppliers to the Chemetco facility based on the weight of materials, type of materials and estimated corporate viability.

CDM obtained archived databases from the Chemetco WANG computer system and had the data converted to PC compatible format by Muller Media Conversions, and then TechLaw standardized the data. TechLaw then conducted a three step evaluation of the data to:

1. determine the number of suppliers and identify which supplied the greatest weights;
2. evaluate the corporate status of the suppliers; and
3. evaluate the nature and recyclability of the materials managed by Chemetco based on the regulatory definition of scrap metal.

The efforts and results of these activities are described below. The efforts in converting Chemetco's archived data into useable data formats are discussed first. The three step evaluation is described next, followed by summary of findings. Figures, tables, and lists are provided at the end of the summary report.

Database Conversion and Standardization

CDM obtained four archived databases from the computer at the Chemetco facility, with the assistance of a former Chemetco employee, which were in the out-dated WANG format. CDM contracted with Muller Media Conversions to convert the archived databases to a PC compatible format (i.e., MicroSoft Access). CDM and TechLaw then worked together to identify relevant data, while also screening unnecessary data. Table 1 identifies the four databases that were converted for this project and includes a brief description of the resulting data. Only the CHEMD1 database contained data directly relevant to the Phase I evaluation, so the remaining three were not evaluated further as a part of the Phase I activities. Table 2 provides most of the associated query and table names and relevant fields within the CHEMD1.mdb database. The queries, tables, and fields considered for much of the data analysis presented are in a bold font with the fields used to link tables together in a bold italicized font.

Several of the fields that resulted from the conversion process contained erroneous characters and symbols which rendered those fields essentially useless. To make data useable, TechLaw executed queries to replicate new, corrected data rather than making changes to the original data. Original data still exists in its unaltered state; however, the corrected data have been placed in new data fields to facilitate evaluation. Examples of steps taken to create the more usable data include:

- Convert some text fields to numeric fields when the data appeared to be numeric in nature.
- Trim erroneous characters and symbols when present in relevant fields.

An important consideration in the management of the Chemetco data is the date of transaction - that is the date materials were brought to the Chemetco site. The Superfund Recycling Equity Act of 1999 (SREA) 42 U.S.C. § 9627, provides an exemption from CERCLA "arranger" and "transporter" liability to those parties who arranged for the recycling of recyclable materials. Parties bear the burden of proving that they are eligible for the exemption. For recycling transactions occurring on or after February 28, 2000, the recycler must prove that they exercised due diligence, described in SREA as "reasonable care," to determine that the consuming facility (i.e., Chemetco) was in compliance with applicable environmental laws and regulations. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] TechLaw evaluated the transactional data and determined that less than 3% of the number of transactions occurred on or before the February 28, 2000 cutoff date. These transactions represented 13,802,014 pounds or roughly 2 % of the total weight. Therefore, TechLaw used the complete database without removal of pre-February 28, 2000 transactions.

Evaluation

Following database conversion and standardization, TechLaw performed three steps to evaluate the data to identify significant suppliers of metal materials to the Chemetco site. As directed by IEPA, TechLaw defined significant suppliers based on the weights of scrap materials conveyed to Chemetco site, used name recognition as a means to evaluate potential size/viability of the supplier, and used the material codes and descriptions to determine the recyclability of the materials supplied. A discussion of each of the three steps follows.

Step 1 - Evaluation by Weight of Materials

TechLaw executed a series of queries to establish a list of suppliers based on weight of materials delivered to the site. The general process for this evaluation step is shown in Figure 1. Certain screening criteria were applied to assure the supplier list contained only those suppliers who had sent materials to the Chemetco facility. These criteria were:

- Suppliers that contain the term “warehouse” in the title were not included because it is believed those materials were bundled at a Chemetco owned or associated warehouse and not from a single supplier if they were shipped to Chemetco
- Supplier names that indicated they were a Chemetco buyer’s trucking route and not an actual supplier.
- Suppliers contributing zero weight were dropped from the list if all transactions for the supplier indicated zero weight.
- Suppliers with no transactional data were dropped (i.e., there were no corresponding data in the PCON table).

A result of this screening effort is the Master Supplier List, which is included in the report as Attachment A. This List identifies suppliers evaluated in this Phase I Summary Report.

TechLaw used various tables in the CHEMD1.mdb database to create a series of queries which generated information on weight of materials delivered to the site and a ranking of suppliers by weight of materials. The review of the data generated a list of 21,250 records, which were then ranked in order of weight supplied. This list was reduced arbitrarily to the suppliers who delivered a weight greater than or equal to 1,000,000 pounds, which identified the top 127 suppliers (less than 7% of the total suppliers). This list of the top, or largest, suppliers by weight is referred to as List 1 – Ranking of Chemetco Suppliers by Weight. The top suppliers account for 325,572,940 pounds out of the total 564,377,088 pounds or 58% of the total weight.

The suppliers include both individual and corporate entries. As CDM and TechLaw grew more familiar with the Master Supplier List, we noted that the original database appears to include a significant number of multiple names for what appears to be the same supplier. These alternative names, or pseudonyms, may be based on very slight variations in the naming convention or multiple supplier names with the same or similar address. Name variations are common in these type of records as the source of the data are often manifests or waste receipt tickets completed by drivers who may not know the correct name or use an abbreviated supplier name. To recognize possible alternative names within the system, the data were sorted both by name and by location and visually reviewed. To the extent possible, potential alternative names representing the same entity were noted with a unique identifier tag. No additional research was performed to support the visual observations of the alternative names. This effort resulted in the identification of approximately 140 supplier names which appear to be alternative names for another supplier found in the supplier list. By applying the identifier tag, the potential alternative names remain in the list and can be grouped for evaluation of the total weight for individual suppliers.

For the purpose of such an evaluation, TechLaw generated Attachment B , entitled Ranking of All Chemetco Suppliers by Weight – Grouped by Alternative Names, which shows the same suppliers as found in the Master Supplier List but groups the suppliers by pseudonyms or alternative names. This list clearly identifies those supplier groups that are thought to be the same entity and their total weight as a group. List 2 provides an abbreviated version of the same data by identifying the top 113 supplier groups supplying greater than one million pounds. These top supplier groups represents a total of 346,261,966 pounds or 61% of the total weight. Although the possible alternative names cannot be confirmed without greater research effort, List 2 potentially presents a more realistic picture of the largest suppliers. However, because the alternative names have not yet been confirmed, List 2 was not used for further evaluation in Phase I.

Step 2 - Evaluation of Supplier Status

As requested by IEPA, TechLaw conducted a cursory review of the list of all suppliers to evaluate the corporate status of the entities listed. The purpose of this review was to determine if the list includes individuals or companies that are fiscally viable with an assumed ability to pay for remedial activities should that become necessary. The general process used in this evaluation step is presented in Figure 2. Because of the large number of suppliers, TechLaw was not tasked to research each supplier name and obtain the corporate information typically used to evaluate a corporation's status (e.g., total assets) as part of Phase I of this project. TechLaw made the assumption that more readily recognized names would likely be larger and possibly more viable, and that name recognition would serve as a surrogate variable for this evaluation. To acknowledge the status of each supplier, TechLaw assigned a Supplier Status Code of 1, 2, or 3 as a relative ranking to each supplier. Suppliers thought to be larger or more viable based on name recognition and TechLaw's familiarity with the recycling industry, were assigned a Supplier Status Code of 1. Suppliers thought to be smaller and the least viable were assigned a Supplier Status Code of 3, and the remaining suppliers were assigned a 2. The main criterion used to assign a status code was name recognition, with some reliance on business location (i.e., suppliers from larger cities were deemed likely to be larger than those from rural locations).

Upon completion of the initial status review discussed above, the ranked results were compared to a list generated by a former Chemetco employee, [REDACTED]

The ranked results of the status review were also compared to the list of the top suppliers by weight generated in Step 1 (List 1). The assumption was made that the greater weight of materials sent to Chemetco by a supplier the greater the likelihood that the supplier was large or viable. The comparison of the ranked results of the supplier status review to the ranking by weight was limited to a spot check of the supplier status assignments and helped distinguish between those suppliers which might be on the border between rankings of 1 and 2.

As a result of this supplier status review, TechLaw assigned 753 suppliers a ranking of "1", with 1,327 suppliers ranked as a "2" and 12,797 suppliers with a "3" ranking. List 2 – the Supplier Status List identifies the suppliers with a Supplier Status Code of 1. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] It is apparent from this review that there are large corporate entities from varied locations throughout the United States that have contributed materials to the Chemetco Site.

Step 3 - Evaluation of Recyclability of Scrap Materials Based on Material Codes

The third step used to evaluate suppliers to Chemetco was conducted by reviewing the types of scrap materials submitted to Chemetco. The general process for this evaluation step is illustrated in Figure 3. For this purpose, TechLaw used the Material Codes table included in the CHEMD1.mdb database, which identifies the specific type of materials (as defined by the material codes) brought to the Chemetco site for recycling. [REDACTED] the 439 material codes used by Chemetco are descriptive codes to identify the type of material and are consistent with standard recycling industry codes as published by the Institute of Scrap Metal and Recycling Industries (ISRI)<sup>1</sup>. [REDACTED]

In discussions with IEPA and CDM, TechLaw determined that three questions were relevant to this evaluation based on the available data. The questions are:

1. Does the database indicate that any materials were brought on-site that were not assigned a material code?
2. Were any materials brought to Chemetco excluded from the definition of scrap metal and therefore considered ineligible for the recycling exemption from CERCLA liability?
3. Were any materials unsuitable for recycling at Chemetco?

<sup>1</sup> TechLaw researched the availability and price of this industry association document. The price for non-members was quoted at $950.

To address the first question, a query was made to verify that all transactions with a weight greater than zero were assigned a material code. The results confirmed that the total weight of materials in the database was represented with a material code. This review verifies that all materials within the database were evaluated in this step.

To address the second question, TechLaw reviewed the specific material codes in light of the regulatory definition of scrap metals. The Superfund Recycling Equity Act (SREA), Section 127 of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C §9627 relies on guidance from the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA) to define scrap metal. In the preamble to the final rule where EPA promulgated 40 CFR Section 261(c) (6); EPA states that the definition of scrap excludes, inter alia, "residues generated from smelting and refining operations (i.e., drosses, slags and sludges), 50 Federal Register 624, January 4, 1985. SREA Guidance<sup>2</sup> further indicates that the size of the metal may be important and that material that is powdery or dust-like may not fall within the definition of "scrap metal".

TechLaw, CDM and IEPA reviewed the list of 439 material codes found in the Chemetco Material Codes table. Material codes are sub-grouped further by a category code. By evaluating the descriptive names of the material codes and associated Categories, TechLaw, CDM and IEPA identified codes which appeared to be either drosses, slags or sludges or other metal dust-like materials and are therefore excluded from the definition of scrap metal. This review identified 69 codes, which are assigned a letter code A, and are considered to be excluded and therefore not eligible for the SREA exclusion. The material codes identifying materials excluded from the definition of scrap metal are listed in Table 3.

To address the third question, TechLaw, CDM and IEPA again looked to the material codes and categories. The descriptive names of a limited number of the codes and categories raised a concern that the associated scrap materials did not appear suitable for recycling at a metal recycling facility based on the nature or type of materials. These include a category of materials labeled combustibles, as well as a group of material codes representing computer parts and other miscellaneous recyclables such as paper and plastic. These groups were assigned letter codes B, C and D respectively. The material codes for these materials are shown in Table 4.

To complete this evaluation step, TechLaw used the database to find only the suppliers of the materials identified by the material codes listed in Table 3 (excluded from definition of scrap metal) and Table 4 (not suitable for recycling at Chemetco) which collectively are considered to be ineligible for the SREA exemption. This list of suppliers is presented as Attachment C, which includes all suppliers of Ineligible Material types. The suppliers are organized by type of material and in order of supplier code for cross-referencing with other lists. The total quantity of Ineligible Materials is 101,037,213 pounds or approximately 18 % of the total. The specific category totals are Excluded Materials (A) – 62,426,907 pounds (11%), Combustibles (B) 27,323,530 pounds (5%), Computer parts (C) 8,658,534 pounds (1.5%) and Miscellaneous (D) 2,628,242 (0.5%).

From this assessment, it is noted that the quantities of Ineligible Materials from many individual suppliers are relatively small (i.e., less than 100,000 pounds). In order to focus on suppliers of the greatest quantity of ineligible wastes, List 4 ranks those suppliers of greater than 100,000 pounds of the Ineligible Materials, by Material Category (i.e., Excluded from Definition of Scrap Metal, Combustibles, Computer Parts and Miscellaneous). In List 4, it is shown that there are 12 suppliers of greater than one million pounds of materials Excluded from the Definition of Scrap Metal, two suppliers of greater than one million pounds of Combustibles, two suppliers of greater than one million pounds of Computer Parts, and no suppliers of greater than one million pounds of Miscellaneous Materials.

Results

Through this Phase I evaluation of Chemetco supplier and material transactions, CDM and TechLaw have gathered a better understanding of the Chemetco databases and the data within them. Each of the lists generated in this evaluation point to suppliers of interest, with a focus on weight of materials (Lists 1 and 2), size or viability of the company (List 3), and the suitability or eligibility of the types of materials brought to the site (List 4). To identify those suppliers that could be considered the most significant suppliers, TechLaw generated List 5, which identifies 122 suppliers whose name appears on both List 1 and 3. These results indicate that nearly all of the top suppliers (List 1) appear to be viable entities. List 5 also identifies which of these entities supplied materials ineligible for the SREA exemption (A, B, C or D) as reflected in Attachment C.
